gation(By Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—Three automobiles belonging to the British embassy were machine-gunned today by two squadrons of Japanese warplanes. None of the occupants were injured.The staff cars in which S. S. Murray, the assistant air attaché of the British embassy, was riding were attacked by the raiding Japanese planes near Minzhong, 14 miles south of Shanghai, about 4
p. m.Although the three motor cars carried the Union Jack, the British officials said, the Japanese warplanes continued their machine gunning after the occupants jumped from the machines and sought cover.

Easily Identified

The British asserted the cars could have been identified easily and added there was no doubt that the attacking planes were Japanese.Herbert Phillips, British consul general, said an immediate investigation had been ordered although no details of the assault had yet been received by his office.The embassy staff cars were enroute to Shanghai from Nanking on the same highway on which two Japanese planes recently seriously injured the British ambassador to China by bombing and machine gunning the automobile in which he was making a similar journey.British sources received the news of the episode with the gravest concern in view of the previous attack on Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen, the ambassador.The British consul general immediately communicated with the Chinese authorities requesting their assistance in the investigation.While the Japanese army launched a heavy aerial bombardment on the strongly-held Chinese Chapel sector on the northern fringe of the International Settlement, a spokesman said that, weather permitting, the long overcast Japanese big push would get underway in the immediate future.

Foreign Areas Exposed

The duel between the giant Japanese bombers and the Chinese anti-aircraft guns, newly emplace-d, re-exposed the foreign areas to heightened dangers.The Japanese planes skirted the downtown areas with their deadly bombs while the Chinese shells burst over the settlement.At Nanking a fleet of 24 Japanese warplanes bombed the Chinese capital today. Two of the Japanese craft were brought down.One of the Japanese planes crashed heading into the center of the city after a spectacular dog-fight with a Chinese pursuit plane.Agricultural Unit

Mrs. Anna Hahn Faces Jury In Cincinnati Trial

Seated between defense counsels Joseph Hoedlin and Hiram Bolsinger, Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31-year-old German-born blond, faced Cincinnati court calmly as her trial for the poison murder of elderly Jacob Wagner began. Mr. Philip Hahn, husband of the accused woman, appears in upper left background of the picture, chatting with his son, Oscar, 11.

WOMEN SEATED
AS HAHN JURORSDefendant in Murder Case
In Good Spirits As Hearing Opens(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—Anna Marie Hahn crossed her fingers today and wondered if a jury dominated by women would sit in judgment of her fate on the charge that she fatally poisoned 78-year-old Jacob Wagner.The 31-year-old German immigrant was apparently in good spirits as she chatted laughingly with the jail matron after the first day under the public gaze of a court room composed mostly of women.There was no court session today in observance of Columbus day.
There were five women and only two men seated tentatively in the first day of the trial which took investigators over a trail of a score of states that ended in Colorado Springs, Colo.The attractive telegrapher's wife who also stands indicted of the murder of 67-year-old George Gesselman, went cheerfully back to her jail quarters despite frequent reference by the defense to the death penalty."Would you be swayed in any way by the fact that the defendant in this case is a woman?" asked Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcall of each feminine prospective juror.
The answer in each case was no, although two men were excused on the ground they opposed capital punishment.Indications that the defense would depend upon circumstantial evidence was seen in the constant questioning of witnesses:"Would the fact that there were no eye-witnesses in this case sway you in any way?"Defense Attorney Joseph H.
Hoedlin repeatedly asked:"Should it be brought out that this defendant had a 12-year-old son who was born out of wedlock would you be prejudiced in returning a fair verdict?"Outcall contended that Mrs.
Hahn received sums totalling $50,- 000 to $70,000 as a result of her friendships with elderly men.Engineers To Hold

Notable Triumph(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Staid Boston circles—Republican and Democratic alike—rocked with laughter today over George M. Cohan's tap-dancing satirization of President Roosevelt and the New Deal.Cohan scored one of the most notable triumphs of his career last night in the world premiere of "I'd Rather Be Right," George S.
Kaufman's and Moss Hart's ribtickling musical political comedy.The veteran comedian, returning to his first song and dance role in ten years, brought down the house when, portraying a genial, tap-dancing President Roosevelt, he crooned:"If I'm not re-elected, I'll never fear for hunger,
I'll never fear for thirst;
I have one son with Dupont,
And another one with Hearst."The satire, reminiscent of the annual Gridiron club shows in Washington at which newspapermen poke good-natured fun at political platforms and leaders, portrayed "Alf Landon" as an obstinate family butler for the Roosevelt who refused to explain to the "President" how he had balanced the Kansas budget.A catchy tune called "Off the

was the vehicle for many of Co-particularly at these verses:"I sit up in my bedroom, the assassin.The gunman was reported to because Marriner had blocked his

New Waterford Woman Near 100th Birthday

"Aunt Hanna" Blackburn, Centenarian Oct. 18, Remains Active

NOT WATERFORD, Oct. 12.—
Not unlike many modern housewives, "Aunt" Hanna Blackburn has never enjoyed washing dishes.It has been her especial aversion since childhood and she will probably lock the kitchen door next Monday when she celebrates her 100th birthday by receiving relatives and friends at her home on the New Waterford-Middleton rd., one mile west of here.Although she is still averse to washing dishes, "Aunt" Hanna could probably qualify as an authority on this subject since she has performed the task more than 10,000 times during her life.Keeps Busy To this day, she washes dishes after each meal, combining this work with caring for her garden, sewing, knitting and reading to make the pleasant days of her long life pass quietly and happily."Aunt" Hanna can't understand why anyone should be interested in her one hundred years of life. She has taken them as a matter of course and feels that her 100th birthday is no different from the

THIRD GANGSTER GIVES SELF UP

Showdown In Front of Sporting Goods Store Ends In Triumph For G-Men; One Federal Officer Is Wounded(By Associated Press) BANGOR, Me., Oct. 12.—Federal sleuths, operating with characteristic precision, today erased with a hail of machine gun fire the notorious Al Brady gang of midwest outlaws.Swept to swift death as the federales struck suddenly were Brady, leader of the gang, and Clarence Shaffer, Jr., one of his henchmen.A third member, James Dalhover, threw down his pistol and surrendered after a machine gun bullet flecked his nose.
He was quickly lodged in a jail cell.Only one G-man suffered injury and he, Walter Walsh, was shot in the shoulder. At the Eastern Maine General hospital, surgeons said they believed his wound was not serious.The showdown between the government and the gangsters came as the latter left a sporting goods store they had visited to purchase pistol cartridges. A federal officer and a member of the Bangor police were in the store and the three gunmen became suspicious and fled.Met By Hail of Lead As Brady emerged, pistol in hand, they were met by a hail of machine gun slugs directed by G-men concealed in a vacant building across the street. An attempt was made by the gunmen to return the fire, but spectators said the fusillade lasted less than five minutes.Brady then lay writhing on the pavement, blood gushing from his chest. Shaffer lay beside him, his head and chest riddled. Dalhover fled up an alley and attempted to hide, but he offered no resistance when Inspector Frank Golden of the Bangor police came up and snapped handcuffs about his wrists.In an automobile the gunmen had parked outside the store, officers found two army machine guns, a can of engine oil and blankets.
The car bore Ohio registration plates numbered KY747.After the coup, the officers said 17 federal officers, headed by Myron Guernsey, have been in the city working on the case during the past four days. They sprang into action today when Inspector Frank Mc-Clay of the Bangor police reported the bandit car was entering the city.Awaiting Guns
The federal officers, as is their custom, declined to discuss their latest victory over outlawry, but Thomas J. Crowley, chief of the Bangor police, disclosed the Brady gang had been waiting a week for arrival of the two machine guns found in the bandit car. He said

THE BEST ARGUMENT

The most significant fact about the oriental crisis at the moment may not be the western world's newly discovered determination to prevent Japan's invasion of China at all. Maybe it is the resistance which the Japanese have encountered.

The invasion so far has been costly. Shanghai, for instance, is said to be a dying city. The factors which made it vigorous have been destroyed; some of them probably cannot be restored. If the war continues a year, it may absorb the expected profits of a century's trade.

Thus, the best guarantee of China's territorial integrity is not the Nine Power pact, which Japan regards as a piece of paper, but China's resistance to destruction of its integrity. Spokenmen for Japan deny there is anything immoral in what their country is doing, and undoubtedly there isn't anything immoral—from their present viewpoint.

But let invasion prove so expensive it becomes a bad financial risk for Japan and the Japanese viewpoint will be altered. The best argument against the use of force in today's world—or yesterday's or tomorrow's world—is proof that there's no percentage in it.

GEORGE DID IT

There's a new trick in getting advantage over the opposition, or maybe an old one warmed over. You think of everything you might be blamed for and then, before it happens, shrug your shoulders knowingly and say, "George is going to do it." George is the mug you don't like.

Spanish loyalists, for instance, have predicted that rebels will drop gas bombs on cities from airplanes disguised with loyalist markings, that rebel submarines flying the loyalist flag will sink foreign shipping and that the rebels even may bomb their own cities to make the loyalists look bad.

The same strategy has been used in this country by strike strategists, who almost invariably charge that acts of violence attributed to them really were committed by the employer and his friends to put strikers in an unfavorable light.

The dickens of it is, sometimes it's true. But that doesn't alter the fact that beating an opponent at his own game is also a handy way to win at your game. The trick of blaming the other fellow for what you are supposed to be capable of doing does not, by any means, prevent you from doing it, too.

JAM SESSION

Expectation of a special session of congress to be called in November, which has been sizzling steadily ever since the regular session adjourned, now seems about ready to explode into certainty.

The purpose of a special session would be to pick up the new deal legislative program where it stalled when the President's Supreme Court juggernaut crowded all other proposals into the ditch.

An incidental purpose, perhaps, would be to crowd through executive "must" bills before congressmen become acutely distracted by the grim business of the primaries next spring. Campaigning and legislating have a tendency to interfere with each other.

The prospect, therefore, is for an attempted repetition of the spirit of the new deal as it was in the old days, with bills seceding along smoothly on a legislative railroad beginning and ending in the executive offices of the White House and with congress being little more than a whistle stop—and no one to flag the train.

What congress will think of a jam session in 1937 remains to be seen.

A reporter of curiosities finds a western steer with four horns. Any peace-maker today will tell him this isn't many for a dilemma.—Chicago Daily News.

If it's true what they say about Justice Black, it

O. O. McINTYRE
NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—George Palmer Putnam, husband of Amelia Earhart, has not yet mourned the brave flyer as dead. He has glimmers of hope that somewhere on some forlorn dot of an island along the outer fringe of the world she and her navigator, Fred Noonan, may be leading a Robinson Crusoe life.

Of course, such a hope, even to him, becomes fantastical at times, but he clings to it. Putnam, a quiet, self-effacing fellow interested chiefly in rare books, has aged much since his life was cracked up by the long and agonizing suspense of the flying tragedy.

He had undergone several of these torturing interludes on other ocean hops of Miss Earhart and looked forward to the around-the-globe flight, which was fatal, as her last. She is said to have promised him she would make no more of a perilous nature.

They were ideally matched. He was in complete sympathy with her aviation ambitions and had no urge for the spotlight. Furthermore, he was possessed of ample fortune to furnish the necessary funds for her costly experiments.

Among the long-standing column feuds is that between Walter Lippman and Heywood Broun. They were long co-workers on the old Morning World.
Broun, with great glee, frequently hurls a journalistic javelin at Lippman, but if it has brought blood it has not shown up in Lippman's column. He ignores the thrusts completely, which is so often disconcerting.

The greyhounds or ocean liner gamblers have had a most profitable season this summer. Their pluckings were enormous—one middle-western industrialist is said to have been taken for $42,000 in a three-day session. Ship attendants can spot the greyhounds on sight. Rarely do they resemble gamblers. And when they are spotted, up go the placards: "Professional Gamblers Aboard." But that rarely does any good.
The professionals have a way of jockeying relaxing passengers into asking them to join a friendly game.
And, of course, there are always the accomplices.
The average card shark is indeed a shark at bridge and poker. And he does not always have to cheat.
The majority can make plenty playing fairly. But if luck is against them they have no scruples in indulging the well known tricks.

After the fashion most of us love the rogue, I have a secret liking for the companionship of the ocean gambler in crossings. I have known several around New York and on shipboard. They are the frankest of all who live by their wits and rarely deny their calling. In fact, they like to romance about it.
There was one light-hearted churl known among his guild by the name of a fruit. Say "Apples," which was not quite it. One time, coming up the gangplank at Plymouth, I hailed him from the deck by his moniker. He flushed, and as he passed clipped out of the side of his mouth: "Nix. On this ship I am Col. Jeffers." "My mother-in-law was along and one evening in the coffee room 'Col. Jeffers' strolled by, stopped and turned on his charm, telling the dear old lady of his own mother, shaking off a vagrant tear so doing, and of his church activities and his noble faith in mankind. He made such an impression it was weeks before I told her he was a professional rascal.

Another type of flim-flammer interesting me was the old time race track tout. Before the days of the pari-mutuels. In early newspaper days I lived in a sort of rake-hell hotel catering to burlesque, second company musicals and track touts. No ambitious student trying to rise in the world studied so assiduously as these touts perused racing forms or dope sheets. To have applied themselves as earnestly to a worthy calling could not have resulted in anything but success. They were tops in misspent endeavor.

Yet it occurs I'm lacking in appreciation for touts.
While strolling among the 50-cent bookies one day at Latonia, I listened to the glib patter of one of the gentry. And as a result of his enticing ring-a-do played a 20 to 1 shot on the nose. The horse romped in and I waited around for the tout to claim his share, but he never showed up.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, October 13.

Although there may be definite factors for stabilization of the affairs on this day, yet there are some astral menaces of perplexities, problems and under-current forces to call for deliberation and sound judgment. This also calls for guarded speech and care in writings. An elder is ready to help with wise counsel, but there may also be sorrow or anxiety about an elderly person.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be given an opportunity this coming year for putting their affairs upon a definitely solid basis. And while there may be problems and perplexities, even elements of subtlety and duplicity to cope with, yet elders may be expected to stand by with wise counsel. Possessions or values of old interests should increase. There may be a sorrow, but in all matters guard the speech and writings.

A child born on this day may have certain solid and profound depths of character and mind, although it may be restive and peculiar, probably mystically inclined. It should be trained early to control its caustic tongue.

Baby's Schedule
ALL THE infant specialists point out that a well-planned daily schedule for the baby is of utmost importance. It will insure proper health habits as well as progressive growth and development. In addition, let me point out, a well-planned schedule for the baby will lessen the work of a tired mother. She will have more time in which to relax and carry on her many other household tasks.

It is not difficult to plan a workable schedule. Since all babies of a given age require the same schedule, it is possible to work out a standard schedule. If you follow such a plan, you will be surprised to find how well it operates and the many benefits derived from it.

First, lay out the feedings on a four-hour schedule. Do not deviate from this rule unless your doctor advises you to do so. The first feeding should be given at six in the morning.

Before feeding the baby make sure that he is comfortable. It is well to see that he is dry and has a fresh diaper. After feeding, the baby may be permitted to play or kick about in his crib.

It is a good plan to give the baby a bath about 9:30 a. m. The bath may be followed by the 10 o'clock feeding. By this time the baby will undoubtedly be anxious to sleep and, unless disturbed, will do so until the time for the next feeding at two o'clock.

The infant usually sleeps most of the time, but if he does not sleep after a feeding, do not be worried.
He will surely sleep after the next feeding. Most of the afternoon is usually passed in this way.
After the six o'clock feeding, the baby should be permitted to kick about and play in the crib. If the bath is not given in the morning, this may be the time for it. Indeed, some mothers prefer to give the bath before the six o'clock feeding.
For very young infants, however,
I would advise that the bath be given in the morning before the 10 o'clock feeding.

Never become upset if the baby cries and appears restless. In due course of time you will learn to distinguish between the cries of pain, discomfort, restlessness and hunger. The cry of hunger is naturally heard around meal time.

If the child is in pain, it will be more of an angry cry, high-pitched and severe. This cry is difficult to control and is never quieted by a bottle. Persistent crying of this sort demands investigation. Make sure that the baby is not lying on creased blankets or on an open pin.
If it persists, call your doctor.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. D. H. Q.—Is it advisable for a patient who is inclined to have bronchitis to live near salt water or would it be best to live near fresh water? The trouble is slight.

A.—Under such circumstances a high, fairly dry and temperate location would be preferable. Dampness should be avoided.

Mrs. P. E. Q.—My husband, who is 68, has a crusty eruption on the forehead about the size of a green pea. It does not seem to spread but itches and burns and when the scab or crust falls off, it leaves a sore, angry-looking spot. The patient suffered a fractured skull some time ago but this does not seem to cause any trouble. What is your advice?

A.—This may be due to a form of eczema. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.
Your doctor should see it and advise you more definitely.

Mrs. E. H. Q.—What can be done to overcome "gas"? I have aching pains through the body which I think are due to rheumatism.
What treatment will overcome this condition?

A.—Proper diet and regular habits are important. For further particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question: 2. If there is any tendency to rheumatism it would be well locate the underlying infection first of all. For further particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

Interested Reader. Q.—What is the treatment for a sinus condition? I have a sister who has this trouble.

A.—The treatment depends upon the underlying cause of the trouble.
For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A Reader. Q.—What will remove superfluous hair? Is there a permanent cure?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope
and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

CHAPTER XV

We drove over to the gate cottage where Officer Greyson was in charge of the guards. Harper had declared that he would keep some of his men around all summer if he didn't get the guilty party. Officer Greyson, and another man, were given a car and started out in the ninety mile drive to Kingsbury to arrest and bring back Griswold. They were to stop at Greatport and get a secret warrant.

Wally had sent two county detectives to New York to confer with Colonel, his cousin, and to get any necessary aid in locating Professor Henri Lardeau.

"You will find," he assured me, "that it is just as I told you—merely a coincidence. This Lardeau happened to steal the painting the same time, the same afternoon, I mean, that Monteth was killed. We mean him, of course. He may have seen Griswold there."

"We want Professor Lardeau, no question about that," I agreed, "and we should see that this maid, Elizabeth Briggs, will be where we can get her when it is time for her to testify."

"She'll be willing enough, according to what she wrote," Harper commented.

"Of course, in a way, it is a spite better," I pointed out, "and ordinarily would have little weight. She wants to get square with Mary for discharging her."

"That's true enough, Harley," Foxcroft agreed, "but she wouldn't make up that yarn out of whole cloth. She wouldn't have written that if she didn't know Griswold was on the grounds. It would be too easy to catch her in the lie in the event that he wasn't there at all, but we know he was."

"Let's see about window cords—the body will be brought back before long for the services this afternoon," I told them.

We had to take Mrs. Johnson, the housekeeper, into our confidence about examining the windows. It wasn't difficult and in a short time we had made sure that no cord was missing from any window in the great house. I examined the windows in Davison's room and I took a look about the room. It was quite neat. A case of books that I examined indicated that the butler had excellent literary taste. Not one of the seven volumes of my own mystery jans that I had given Mr. Monteth were in the lot, nor any other literature of such a light nature.

There was a rack with half a dozen pipes, proof of his claim that he was fond of a pipe in his quarters. A telephone call came for Sergeant Harper. It was from Officer Greyson in Greatport where he had stopped to get the warrant for Griswold. He had forgotten to report that Nola Morin, the upstairs maid, had tried to leave the grounds the previous evening and had been turned back.

"Let's have a talk with her royal highness," Harper said.

"Handle her with gloves and we'll get more," Foxcroft urged.

His experience as a successful trial lawyer had taught him that.

"You question her, Mr. Stevenson," Harper suggested, "she doesn't like me—because I'm just a plain cop to her."

"We found her cleaning the upstairs parlor."

"Hello, something else, again?"

"Nothing serious, Miss Morin."

"I assured her, with a smile that I hoped would be disarming."

"Well, I'm glad to see you." She looked at Harper. "I want to know why I can't have an evening out."

"You may, after today, Miss Morin. Naturally we have to ask questions and we didn't want any of the servants running away."

"That's more like it. What's on your minds now?" She looked at all of us.

"You ask Mrs. Johnson for an evening off?" I queried.

"Why? It was my evening off, but one of your bulls down at the gate headed me off."

"He had his instructions. Were you going anywhere in particular?"

"No. That is, I wanted to get out, get away for an evening. I intended to take the bus to Greatport, see a picture, buy a few little things. No harm in that, was there?"

"Not at all, Miss Morin. Naturally, when you went in to see Mr. Monteth, that afternoon, it added you to the list of those we have to investigate."

"Seemed to be startled, just for a fleeting moment. Then she smiled at us."

"That's all right with me. Go ahead and investigate. Just because I wanted to see if Mr. Monteth wouldn't pay me more, you folks seem to think I did something criminal."

"Not at all. What you told us, helps, in a way. It proves that Mr. Monteth was alive when you went down to the library porch. When Davison found him he was half off the glider hammock and uncovered—stabbed to death. We aren't foolish enough to think that you had a reason on earth for doing that."

"Thank you, Mr. Stevenson."

"And as for going off the grounds, to Greatport or anywhere else, I am sure Sergeant Harper won't object."

I gave him a quick wink.

"Sure, sure. Go ahead," he agreed.

Outside Harper said, "What's the big idea, Mr. Stevenson, being so sweet to that dame?"

"To put her off her guard, sergeant. I can't get over a feeling that she knows something about this, or that she had some other reason to ask for a raise in pay, when she went to see Monteth. Tomorrow I am going to investigate Nola Morin."

"Go to it."

"It will be a waste of time. Chances are, Harley," Foxcroft declared, "that Griswold will have confessed by tomorrow."

We went out to the garage, the tool house and around, at my suggestion, looking for a window weight.

"Even though no windows on the premises are without a cord and weight," I declared, "it doesn't prove that the cord didn't come from some place around here. The user wouldn't carry the heavy weight death did not succeed. I saw the downstairs maid, Belle Jackson. She admitted that she had telephoned her chum, Elizabeth Briggs, that same evening about the murder. She had learned it from one of the chauffeurs.

The funeral services were brief. The body was placed in the Monteth mausoleum in the local cemetery. Foxcroft had prepared a statement for the press to the effect that an arrest would be made within twenty-four hours that would solve the mystery. The reporters grinned at him and told him it was old stuff. He assured them that in this case it was a fact.

We had returned from the cemetery no more than an hour when Sergeant Harper came up to the house from the gate cottage, almost on the run. He got Foxcroft and myself outside.

"We made one thundering big blunder," he cried, "we let Griswold slip away from us."

"How? Didn't they—"

"He'd been gone a couple hours when my men got there. He drove over to Kingsbury Junction and took a west-bound train. He didn't buy any ticket. Greyson wired ahead but he had left the train."

"We've got to find Griswold!" Foxcroft cried, adding a few lurid curses, so great was his disappointment over learning that the man had escaped.

"It was a blunder, we should have nabbed him—this isn't going to help me any," Sergeant Harper said, bitterly.

"Take it easy, Sergeant." I advised, "until this morning you didn't have enough evidence to warrant holding Griswold."

"Just what did your men report?" Foxcroft asked.

Griswold has lived at a private boarding house in Kingsbury during the four years he has been an instructor at the woman's college. All the woman at the house claimed to know was that he left hurriedly with a suit case, and drove away in his car, without stopping to speak to her."

"What about the train—he had to name some destination to the conductor when he came for the ticket, and pay him," I said.

"He paid the fare to Meadowville and got off there, the conductor wired Greyson."

"There is an airport there. I'm going to jump over and try and find out where he headed. We have got to get him. He's the man who killed both Monteth and Braunman." Foxcroft almost shouted.

We agreed that it was a good idea. (To Be Continued)

OPENING SEEN IN BLACK CASE
Has Supreme Court Left Way Ajar For New Litigation?

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Some legal experts expressed the opinion today that the supreme court has left the way open for further challenges of Justice Hugo L. Black's eligibility.
The court ruled yesterday that Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands, and Patrick Henry Kelly, Boston attorney, did not have sufficient interest in the outcome to warrant their attacks on the new justice's right to his seat.
This made it possible, in the opinion of some observers, for filing of new contests by litigants who might be directly interested.
Levitt was silent on his specific plans, but asserted he intended to take further action.
Both he and Kelly contended Black was constitutionally ineligible because there was no vacancy on the court and because the justice was a member of the senate which increased the "eligibility" of justices by permitting them to retire at $20,000 a year after becoming 70 and serving 10 years.
Black looked on solemnly while Chief Justice Hughes read the brief decision, then, secure for the time being at least, spent the remainder of the day listening close while lawyers argued before the court. He asked no questions but chatted frequently with Justice Roberts.
Although he participated in none of the actions taken yesterday, when the court agreed to review 72 controversies and refused to pass on 235, Black was expected to join in the decision of cases argued hereafter.
The 72 disputes included two cases involving the right of the national labor relations board to conduct hearings, under the Wagner Labor Relations Act, on complaints of unfair labor practices by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd. and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company.

A New Offense
BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 12.—George B. Melrod was booked in police court on a reckless driving charge but Patrolman Walter G. Maul said it was a new offense—three-wheeling.
He testified he arrested Melrod for driving a mile and a half through city streets at 30 miles an hour with the right front wheel missing from his car.
"I didn't know it could be done," commented Judge Robert J. Summers, as he set the case for trial Thursday.

BOSTON LAUGHS AT F.D.R. SATIRE

George M. Cohan Returns To Stage To Score Notable Trimuph

Reading books like Silas Marner—I'd read Sears Roebuck catalogues
To get away from Garner.
"My messages to congress are a lot of hoola hoola; I'm not so fond of Bankhead. But I'd like to meet Tallulah." A major laugh came when the "President," at a cabinet session, turned to "Attorney General Cummings" and ordered: "Cummings take down a law!" There was another when the "President" avowed: "I'm very fond of Eleanor, But I never read her column." No mention was made of the Justice Black controversy until the last act, when nine black-robed "justices" danced gaily across the stage and "Chief Justice Hughes" warned the ninth man in line: "Hurry up, 'Justice Black.' Remember, you've got to go on the air at 7:30 and do a little more explaining."
The satire apparently aroused no partisan resentment, and cries of "speech! speech!" rewarded Cohan—a very realistic looking Roosevelt—at the closing curtain. The veteran actor, producer and playwright, who has been on the stage since he made his debut in 1888 at the age of ten, thanked his audience briefly.
The plot concerns two youthful lovers who want to marry but can't because the boy's employer, wary of an unbalanced budget, won't provide the necessary pay raise. The president takes their plight before the cabinet, pleads for a balanced budget with a sprightly tune, "Let's balance the budget."

Belgians Winners In Six-Day Race

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—George and Archie Ballant, Belgian brothers, won the international six-day bike-race at Pan-Pacific auditorium early today.

Ewald Wessel and Al Sellinger, German pair, finished second, two laps behind. Mike DeFilippo and Frankie Turano, Italians, trailed three laps back of the leaders and Bobby Walthour and Oscar Juner, New York team, were fourth, four laps in the rear.

The winning Belgians covered 2,413 miles in 147 hours.

Dog Races End

WARREN, Oct. 12.—Greyhound racing at the Fowler Kennel club track, 19 miles northeast of here, was canceled last night and the season closed because of cold and rainy weather.

Most of the greyhounds were transferred to Steubenville or southward for the Florida season.

QUESTION MARK HOVERS AROUND GOPHERS' POWER

Minnesota Has Own Fans Guessing After Poor Showing Thus Far

By EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—A big question mark will follow Minnesota into its battle at Ann Arbor with Michigan next Saturday.

The Gophers have the fans guessing as a result of their showing against Nebraska and Indiana. Against the Cornhuskers, Bernie Bierman's team flashed real power for a few moments, then became a sluggish, unwieldy machine. In barely defeating Indiana, the Gophers did not look like a team which pre-season information said would roll over most opponents unmercifully.

Apparently it is "make or break" for the Gophers against the Wolverines. Michigan, in its game with Northwestern, indicated it has one of the best lines in the conference. If the Gophers fail to unleash the latent power which many observers insist is still there, Michigan may capitalize on Minnesota's none-too-strong aerial defense and smooth the title path for other teams. Defeat of the Gophers by a team which has lost two games would incline many fans to the belief that glowing pre-season reports of Minnesota power may have grown out of past accomplishments.

The Gophers started heavy work today and Wednesday and Thursday will hold secret practice. Far from downhearted, Michigan's squad rushed back to work with high spirit, drawing an observation from Coach Harry Kipke that "I would not be surprised if we win Saturday."

At Purdue, Coach Mal Eward began building reserve strength for the Boilermakers, who will test Northwestern's champions, Purdue, although defeated by Ohio State, showed a good attack and strong defense in whipping Carnegie Tech and must be given a chance to upset the Wildcats, who had a light drill yesterday and then looked at movies of the Michigan game.

Indiana, which entertains Illinois, felt the injury jinx. Four Hoosier regulars—Kenderride, Davis, Anderson and Sirtosky—may not be in top physical shape for the Illinois, who also worked yesterday with several first stringers on the sidelines nursing bruises from the scoreless tie battle with Notre Dame.

Iowa worked on offense in preparation for battle against Wisconsin's promising Badgers, who were put through an easy signal drill by Coach Harry Stuhldreher as a reward for their 27 to 0 win over Chicago. The Chicago Eleven, facing the invasion of Princeton's Tiger, worked on defense. Ohio State has an open date Saturday.

HUNTED TO FIND MICHIGAN STARS

Varsity End Discovered Playing On Basketball Team

EAST LANSING, Mich.—Michigan State coaches had to do some intensive searching to find two of this year's stars. Line Coach Tom King discovered Ole Nelson, towering end, in a freshman basketball class while Allen Diebold, first string quarterback, didn't think he was good enough to play college football and reported only because his High school coach insisted.

DURHAM, N. C.—Duke's Blue Devils are likely to be dubbed the Travelers before they settle down to play a home game. In his first crack they face Georgia Tech at Atlanta. The following Saturday they'll be facing Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., after the longest trip a Duke team ever has taken and they end their tour Oct. 30 by playing Washington and Lee at Richmond.

PORTLAND, Ore.—The University of Portland and Pacific university may not rival the famous passing teams from the southwest but it's not because they don't try. In their recent meeting Portland tried 27 passes and Pacific 28. They completed ten and five, respectively.

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Almost any team might win its football games if it follows the theories expounded by Coach Dutch Myer of Texas Christian.

"If we make more points than they do, they can't beat us," he says, "and if we keep the ball most of the time, they can't do their stuff."

MANHATTAN, Kans.—James Brook, Kansas State sophomore halfback, is claiming he set a record of some sort when his team played Boston College. He scored a point in his first appearance in the K-State varsity and he did it without playing any time in the game. Brock was sent in to kick the extra point after a touchdown, did it was withdrawn. Since time is taken out for the tries after touchdowns, Brock had no part in the regulation 60 minutes of action.

BOWLING RESULTS

The wood smoke you smell at today is all that was left after W. Lynn Ferguson of the Electric Furnace finished burning up the alleys with scorching scores in the Class B American league last night.

Ferguson turned in the best three game score recorded in the city to date as he paced the Furnace to two out of three wins over Fernengel's Colts. He rolled 665 on games of 223, 234 and 208.

The Ohio Edison continued to hold first place in the American loop, winning two out of three games from the Masons. In other matches, Reich Sports took two out of three from Mullins Foremen and Mullins Press Room won two out of three from the Forgotten Five, which replaced Mullins Foremen No. 3.

The Colonial Billiards successfully defended their first place position in the Quaker City league at the Grate Recreation alleys last night by taking three games from the Winona I. G. A.

Flooding & Reynard Drugs remained in second place despite losing two games to the Tigers. The Economy V-8's pulled up into third position by winning three from the Pure Oils.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—The Cubs went out to stop an old White Sox habit today—that of winning another city baseball title.
Holding three victories to two for the Cubs as the result of their 6 to 4 win over the National leaguers yesterday at Comiskey park, the Sox sent Right-hander Vernon Kennedy after their 15th city baseball championship and their fourth in a row. A win for the Cubs, who will start Southpaw Larry French, will change the scene of action from Comiskey park to the Cubs' home lot, Wrigley field, for the seventh and final tilt.

MONROE, La., Oct. 12.—Bidding for high scoring honors among the nation's football teams is little Northeast Center, Louisiana State university's junior college.
The Indians have rolled up 211 points in three games this year, and if you listen to the Tribe's fans the scoring has just begun.

The desire to pile up a touchdown record struck the Monroe school with a bang after the Indians opened their campaign by routing Arkansas A. & M.'s eleven from Monticello by the amazing score of 111-0. The Arkansas team won last year's game, 6-0.
Then came a clash with Tennessee junior college and a 59-0 victory. Faithful supporters were in the third battle, Kilgore college, which annexed the Texas Junior college championship last year and was undefeated since October, 1936, fell victim to a tune of 41 to 6.

Behind this high scoring are 34 husky youngsters and a young coach, Jimmy Malone, who learned his football at L. S. U. and teaches the Tigers' style of play.
The squad was drawn from a student body of about 500, half of whom are coeds.

The line averages around 190 pounds and the backfield 160.
FREMONT—Charles Moerder, 75, after a 50-year absence from the corn fields, aided by Melvin Overmyer, cut, tied and stacked 160 shocks of corn in six hours. He said they cut nearly half of it in the first hour of work, "taking time out" to eat during the other five hours.

SCORING STARS FAR FROM PACE SET LAST YEAR

Three Tied For Lead In Scoring Parade With 24 Points Each

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—Ohio's grid-ders who specialize in taking foot-balls on personally-conducted tours across enemy goal lines are staging a merry race for individual scoring honors this season, but with the three-eighties pole just passed, they are far off the blazing pace set the last two years.

Slovak of Toledo, Metzger of Miami and Lucas of Western Reserve are pacing the pack of 150 scorers with 24 points, each having counted four touchdowns.

After the first three games a year ago, Norm Schoen of Baldwin-Wallace, who went on to capture the national scoring laurels with 117 points, had a total of 43. Two years ago Ray Zeh of Western Reserve romped for 64 points in the first three contests, and then finished with 112 and the national honors.

Slovak failed to score Saturday as Toledo nipped Ohio Wesleyan, and Metzger was stopped as the Redskins bowed to Marshall, but Lucas moved into the top berth tie by scoring the touchdown with Blind which the Red Cats defeated Ohio university.

Patton of Muskingum is on the heels of the leaders with 21 points, and Heisler of Capital is next with 19. After that the scorers show less power, Keller of Xavier and Garcia of Akron being the only others to place the enemy defense three times.

Something new for the year popped up Saturday as Feeney of De-fiance booted a field goal from the nine-yard line against Adrian, Mich., it being the first three-pointer scored by or against an Ohio club this year.

Slovak's total of 24 is the same he made all last season, and twice as many as he scored in 1935. Metzger also is far ahead of his 1936 pace, when his season's work was good for but a dozen points, Lucas, a sophomore, was not in the 1936 wars.

Here's how the leaders stack up:

Player	School	Td.	Pt.
Slovak, Toledo	4	0	24
Metzger, Miami	4	0	24
Lucas, W. Res.	4	0	24
Patton, Muskingum	3	3	21
Heisler, Capital	3	1	19
Keller, Xavier	3	0	18
Garcia, Akron	3	0	18
Ellison, Miami	2	3	15
Heinmiller, B-W	2	2	14
McDonough, Dayton	2	2	14
Janjak, Ohio U.	2	2	14
P. Lundblad, B-W	2	1	13
Suber, B-W	2	1	13
Watkins, Denison	2	1	13
Heacock, Muskingum	2	1	13

Twenty-one grid-ders are tied in the next spot with 12 points each as the result of two touchdowns. They are: Meacham of Akron, Davidson of Baldwin-Wallace, Mickov-sky and Schweitzer of Case, Banks and Zlotkevich of Dayton, Snyder and Orme of Denison, Bloom of Hiram, Zelina of Heidelberg, Arsenal of John Carroll, Scheible and Storms of Miami, Reed of Mount Union, Nardi of Ohio State, Malone of Ohio Northern, Mohler of Ohio University, Maher and Patrikis of Toledo, Kelker of Western Reserve and Farley of Xavier.

Wife of Gangster Lee Shaffer, Jr., Not Sorry Police Bullets Made Her Widow

(By Associated Press)
BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—Minnie Raimondo is "not sorry" she was widowed today by police bullets which killed Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr. in Bangor, Me.
Shaffer and Alfred Brady, leader of the Brady gang, were killed. James Dalhove, who married Mary Raimondo, Minnie's sister, was wounded.
"I am not sorry," said Minnie, who married Shaffer under the alias of Riley. "I am glad they have been caught. Now I know where they are."
"We were afraid they would come back some day."
"For the first few nights (after the gang fled Baltimore) we were afraid they would come back, but we finally got used to it."
The girl said she would not claim Shaffer's body and revealed she may have been the one who led federal agents to the gang.
"I thought they would be caught in Maine because they often said they would go to Maine sometime," she said. "We told police that they often frequented Maine."

"I don't feel very sorry about it," Mary said. "They had it coming to them. They ought to get it after all the trouble we went through."
"In one way, I guess, I am a little sorry after all," she added. "But it had to happen sooner or later."
The first tip in months of the whereabouts of the Brady gang came last Aug. 7, when Brady, Shaffer and Dalhove escaped during a gun battle with two patrolmen who sought to question them as automobile thieves. The police-men were not hit, but their cruiser was disabled.
The marriages of Shaffer and Dalhove became known as police launched search for the gunmen. Police found the trio had lived here for months, making bank-robbing forays into Indiana.

In an improvised gun-making shop in the basement of the Hal-hover-Shaffer apartment, police found a veritable arsenal.
Brady, under the name "Eddie Maxwell," had operated a tavern here.
Charges of obstructing justice were placed against the Raimondo sisters, but later were dismissed.

NEW WATERFORD WOMAN NEAR 100

"Aunt Hanna" Blackburn To Observe Birthday Oct. 18

only five times in five years.
Reading the Bible is one of her daily pleasures and she finds time, too, for newspapers and magazines. Her mind is surprisingly keen and her eyesight and hearing are only slightly impaired by her many years.

She takes pride in her small garden and shows exceptional interest in the doings of friends and acquaintances.
A birthright member of the Society of Friends, "Aunt" Hanna was born Oct. 18, 1837, at West Brownsville, Pa., one of 14 children. She attended schools at Lowhill, Pa., and the Friends Boarding school at Mt. Pleasant, which was then the center of the Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends.
With her parents and brothers and sisters, she came to Ohio in 1859. The family traveled in a covered wagon and settled on a farm west of Middleton.
"Aunt" Hanna remained at the family homestead, now occupied by Ross Meiser, brother of George Meiser of Salem, until the death of her parents. She then moved with two sisters, Lydia and Amy, to her present home.
Her one sister, Lydia, died during the flu epidemic in 1892. The other sister, Amy, died in 1894.
Last of Her Family
The death of the two sisters did not leave "Aunt" Hanna alone. She had several married brothers still living and the companionship of a niece, Miss Inetta Blackburn, whom she and her sisters had adopted when Miss Blackburn's parents died.

Today, "Aunt" Hanna is the last surviving member of her family.
For 54 years "Aunt" Hanna has lived in her present home, which has always been a welcome spot for nieces and nephews. Dr. W. J. Blackburn, 75, of the Newgarden rd., Salem, is a nephew and at one time boarded in "Aunt" Hanna's home.
"Aunt" Hanna herself is planning no special celebration for the day on which she will reach the century mark in years, but her relatives have arranged open house for Monday and "Aunt" Hanna will be present to greet friends from 2 until 4 p. m.

Leg Is Broken

LISBON, Oct. 12.—Miss Martha Dailey is recovering at the Salem City hospital from an accident which occurred Saturday. Miss Dailey slipped on the floor of a local restaurant, breaking her right leg below the hip. She will be returned to her home here some time this week.

Youngstown Wins Lower Power Rates

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 12.—City council last night accepted by unanimous vote a rate agreement offered by the Ohio Edison Co. and granted the utility a 20-year light and power franchise which will become effective in 30 days.
Under the new rate electric consumers in the city are placed on a par with those in Akron and utility officials say, will save $475,000 annually.
Most of the saving will accrue to domestic consumers. Sam Sutes, utility vice president, said. The company's present franchise would have expired in 1942.

No Cash Available

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—Commissioners of Franklin county said today an appropriation to pay $5,036 still due on three-year-old assessments against the county by the Scio-Sandusky conservancy district could not be made before settlement of the June tax collection in November. They said no money was available to pay the obligation.

the diplomatic service in Europe as a quiet-spoken, effective agent of his government. He was six feet tall and weighed about 185 pounds. Except for three years in the state department at Washington, 1923-26, when he also handled western European affairs, Marriner spent most of his career in Europe.
Native of Portland, Me.
He was a foreign counselor of the United States embassy at Paris where he was known principally as an adviser on disarmament and European affairs.

A native of Portland, Me., he was graduated from Dartmouth and Harvard universities and was an instructor in English at Harvard, a position he resigned to enter the foreign service Aug. 27, 1918.
The scholarly career man never married.
After serving at Stockholm and Bucharest, Marriner was appointed in October, 1926, as technical assistant to the American delegation at the second session of the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva.

Since then his principal work had been in the disarmament field first as secretary to the legation at Berne, Switzerland, and later as a technical delegate to disarmament conferences. He was one of the negotiators of the Kellogg-Brand peace plan of 1928.
Marriner left Paris March 26, last year, for the Syrian post.

Lisbon Man Given 6-Month Jail Term

LISBON, Oct. 12.—Sam Kurtz, Lisbon Negro, was sentenced to six months in the county jail Monday afternoon following his plea of guilty to a charge of assault and battery.
Kurtz was indicted by the September grand jury on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. At his arraignment last Thursday he entered a plea of not guilty to this charge.
The court permitted him to plead guilty to the lesser charge when Prosecutor Karl Stouffer stated there were mitigating circumstances in the case.
Kurtz was charged with shooting at Ellwood Barber of Lisbon several weeks ago.

22-Year-Old Suit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The United States supreme court today had refused the plea of E. R. Bradley of New York for damages from the Adams Express company for the loss of several horses in an Ohio train wreck 22 years ago. The company claimed that a windstorm—"an act of God"—caused the wreck and Bradley charged it was caused by defective railway equipment. A sixth district court of appeals decision had been in favor of the company.
